Overview of the Global Partnership for Effective Development Cooperation (GPEDC)

The Global Partnership for Effective Development Cooperation (GPEDC) was established as a direct result of the Busan Partnership agreement.

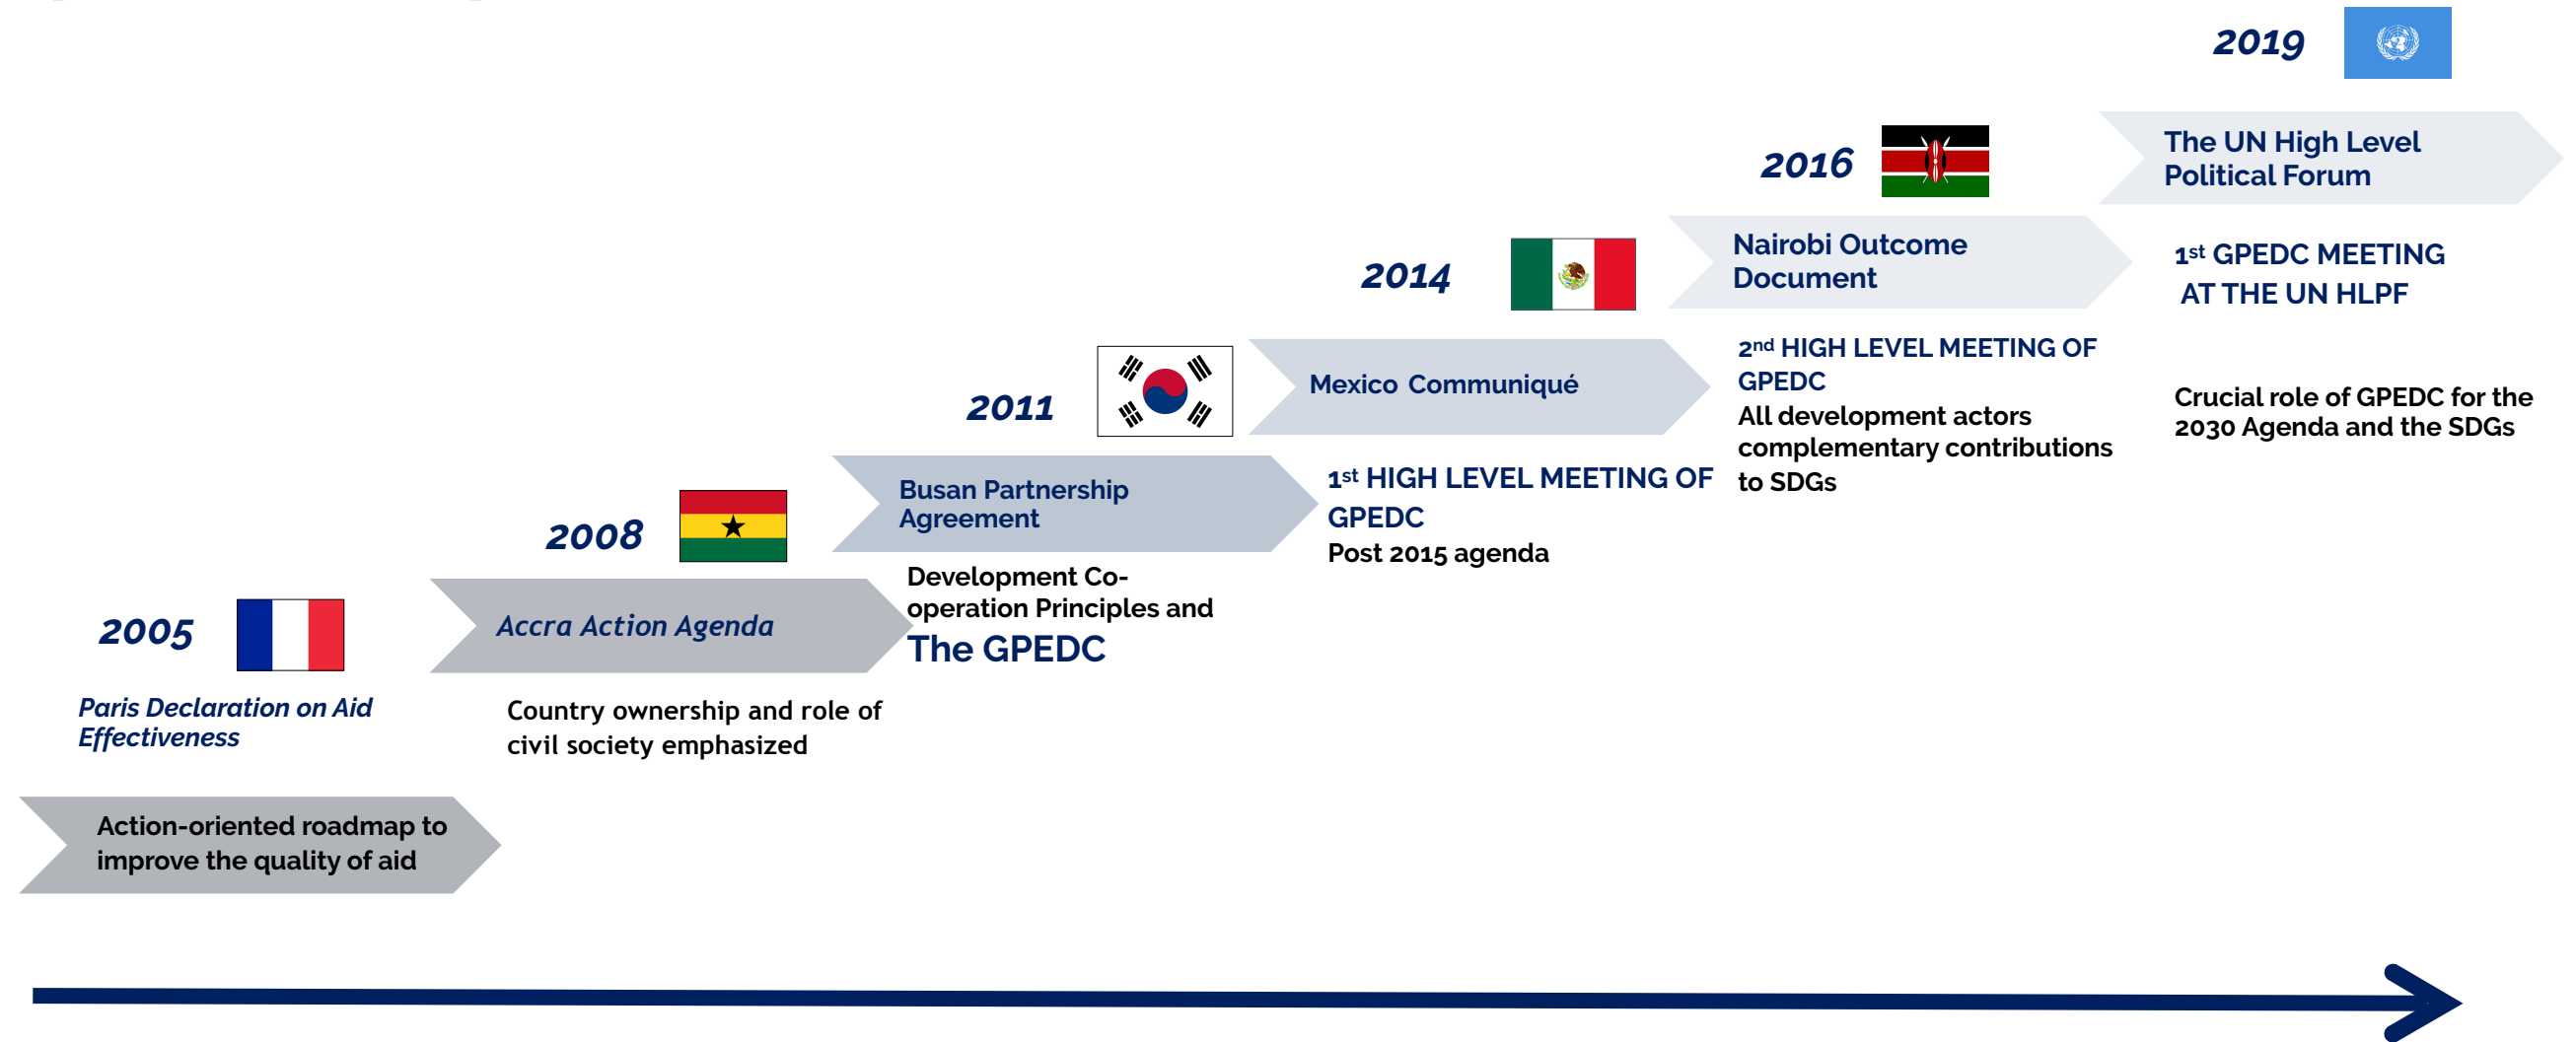

What is Global Partnership for Effective Development Cooperation (GPEDC)?

- GPEDC is a multi-stakeholder platform to advance the effectiveness of development efforts by all actors, to contribute to the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and deliver long-term oriented results.
- It brings together governments, bilateral and multilateral organizations, civil society actors, as well as representatives of the parliaments and the private sector to maximize their engagement and commitment in the development process.

The Process Towards a More Inclusive Development Cooperation

GPEDC Contribution to Tracking Progress on 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development at the Country Level

Target 17.16

Enhance multi-stakeholder partnerships for development in support of SDGs.

Target 17.15

Respect a country's policy space and leadership to establish and implement policies for the SDGs.

Target 5.c

Adopt and strengthen policies and legislation for the promotion of gender equality and women's empowerment.

GPEDC Supports Achieving the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development through:

Promoting knowledge-sharing and peer-learning on effective approaches

Learning from all types of development cooperation

Contributing to increased effectiveness at the country level

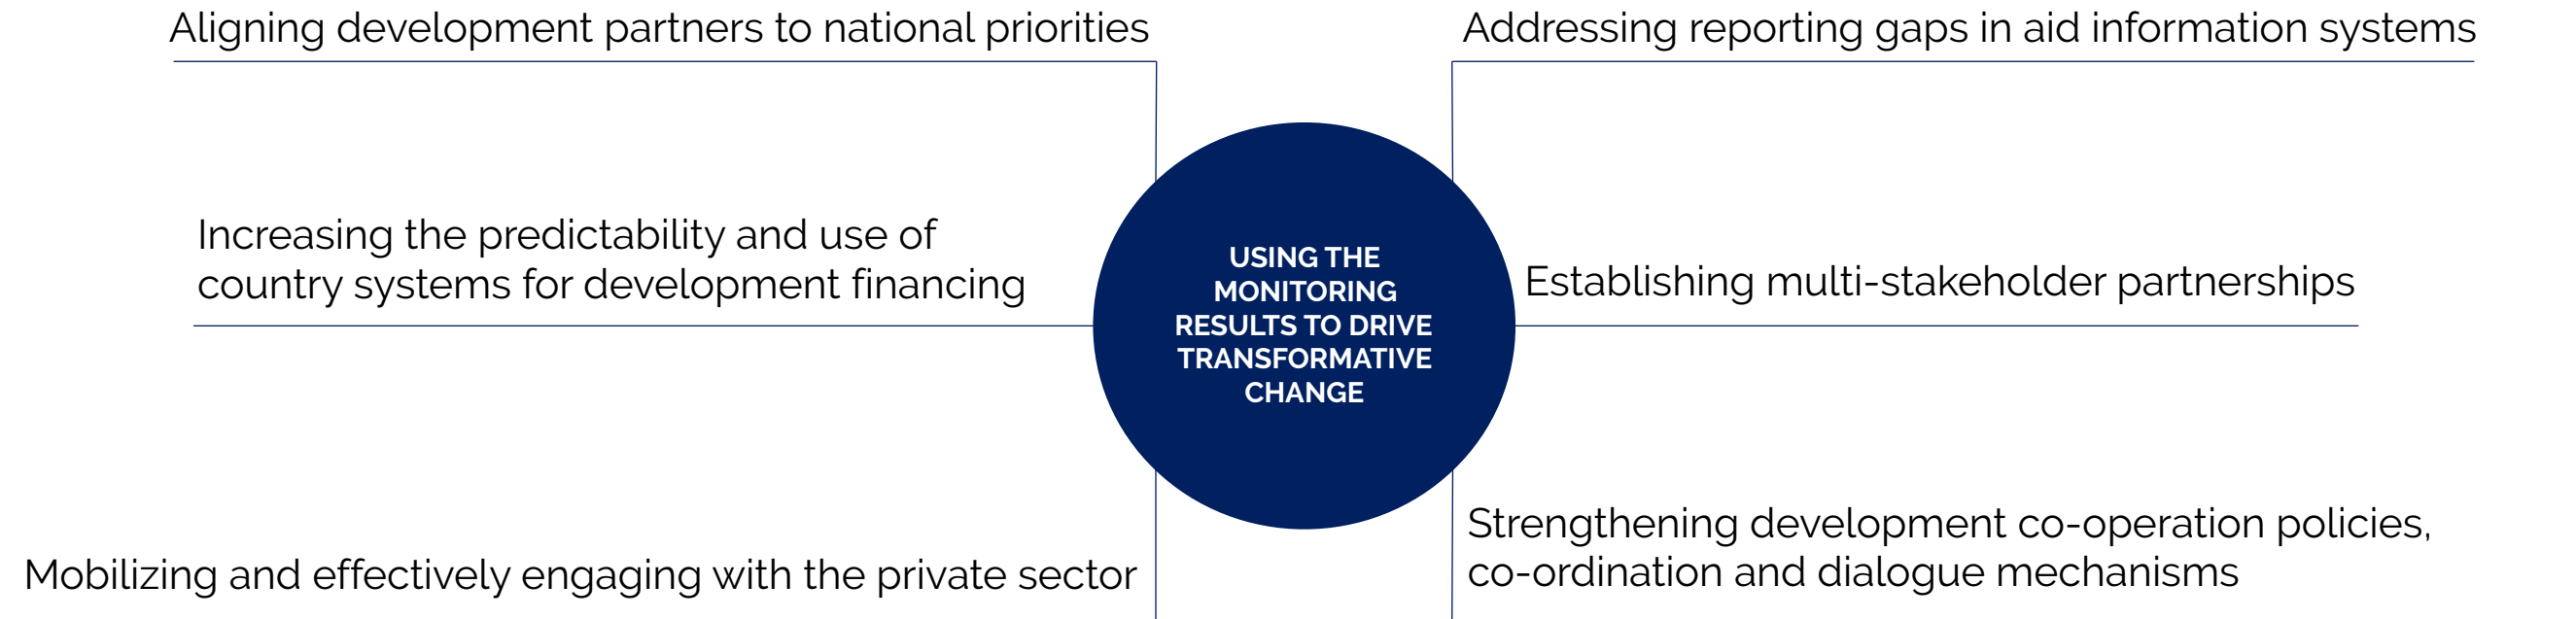

Supporting engagement of the private sector through development cooperation

Strengthening political momentum for effective development cooperation

General Findings and Global Trends in 2018

86 countries have participated in the 2018 Third Monitoring Round of GPEDC.

General Findings and Global Trends in 2018

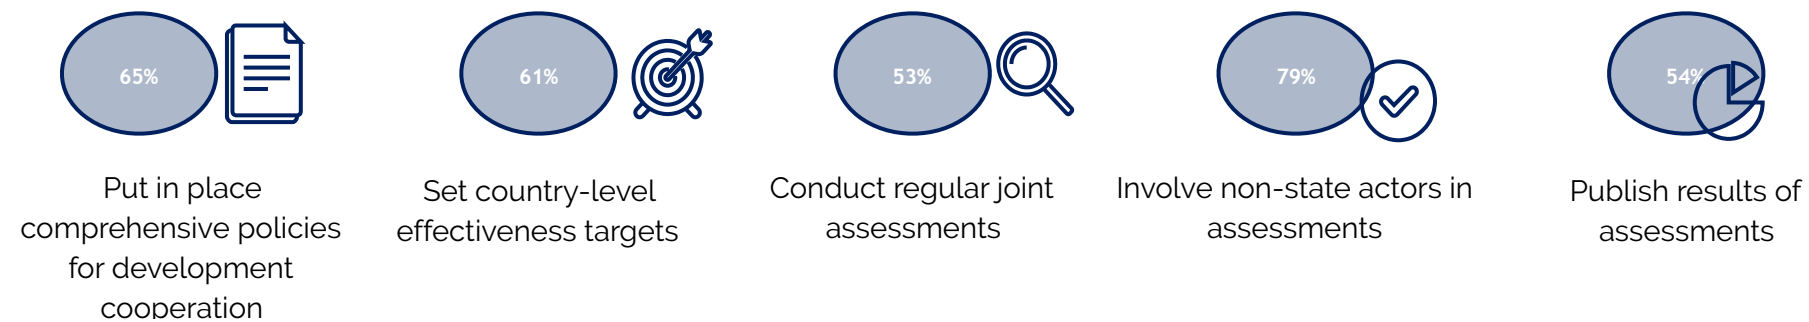

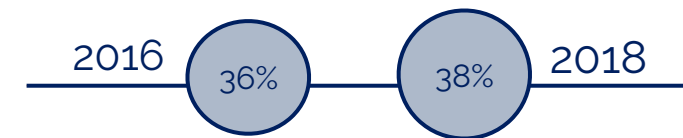

- Since 2011, the proportion of partner countries with high quality national development strategy has almost doubled.
- Nearly ALL national development strategies approved since 2015 reference the 2030 Agenda/SDGs.
- In designing national development strategies, governments highly consult a wide range of national stakeholders.
- Development partners engage to a lesser extent country's stakeholders in developing country strategies and programs.

General Findings and Global Trends in 2018

- There is a slight progress in making development cooperation more transparent. Information provided by development partners is comprehensive and nearly all partner countries have an information management system in place for development cooperation.
- Mutual accountability mechanisms are becoming more inclusive, the vast majority of development partners reported that mutual accountability assessments were effective in informing the ways of working in the country.
