Dawi Clinics Open Their 10th Branch

The integrated family clinics chain expands to the Nile Delta

Dawi Clinics, an innovative provider of outpatient healthcare services out of Egypt, celebrated the opening of their tenth branch in the city of Tanta, the capital of Gharbeya governorate in the Egyptian Nile Delta. The new branch is the chain's first outside the capital. Dawi Clinics already operate 9 branches scattered throughout Cairo, Giza and 6th of October City. Through the use of modern technologies and systems such as electronic medical records, standardized care pathways and a centralized call center and reservation system, Dawi Clinics aim to provide patients with a consistently high quality of medical care throughout all of their branches.

Speaking of the event, Magda Habib, Dawi Clinics' CEO, said "Our expansion to the Nile Delta reflects our ongoing commitment to provide Egyptian families all over the country with high-quality, affordable and convenient primary healthcare services. Expect many more branches to come."

About Dawi Clinics

Dawi Clinics was founded in 2016 to fill a gap in the healthcare market for primary care services. Dawi operates integrated family clinics that provide a variety of primary, secondary and diagnostic services with the aim of covering 80% or more of the primary healthcare needs of Egyptian families under one roof.
